General Information of China:

General Information: China, representing one of the earliest civilizations in the world, has a recorded history of about 3,600 years. Being the 3rd largest country in the world, in terms of tourism, it offers endless diversity of historical, architectural and natural scenery on earth. Despite there are 56 minorities spread out in China, Han people account for 93% of the total population. The Han people have its own spoken and written language, known as the Chinese language, which is commonly used throughout China and a working language of the United Nations. You may be interested to know that The People's Republic of China has both marine and land boundary line of more than 20,000 kilometers and a coastline of 18,000 kilometers, with a total land area of 9.6 million square kilometers, next only to Russia and Canada. Its territory extends over 50 latitudes from north to south, embracing the equatorial belt, the tropics, the subtropics, the moderate temperate zone and the cold temperate zone. And from east to west, it covers over 62 longitudes, and has longitudinal regular divisions of forests, grasslands, deserts, plains, hilly lands and Highlands. Ancient Chinese architecture enjoyed a long history and great achievements, and created many architectural miracles such as the Great Wall. In the process of its development, superior architectural techniques and artistic design was combined to make unique Chinese architecture be one of the three greatest architectural systems.

Language: Official language is Mandarin and most people also use their local dialect. All tourist hotels employ staff fluent in English, Japanese and other languages, who can write down addresses or instructions in Chinese for taxi drivers or others. In addition, roads in major cities are signposted in pinyin - the Chinese system of Romanization - which makes it quite easy to get around with the help of a map.

Currency: Renminbi (RMB). The basic unit is the yuan, and is divided into 10 jiao. Paper notes are issued in denominations of one, two, five, 10, 50 and 100 yuan; one, two and five jiao; and one, two and five fen. Coins are issued in denominations of one yuan; five jiao; and one, two and five fen.

Credit Cards: Visa, MasterCard and American Express are the most common. Cards can be used in most mid to top-range hotels, Friendship and department stores, but cannot be used to finance your transportation costs.

Time: GMT plus eight hours (the whole of China is set to Beijing time)

Electricity: Electricity is 220 Volts, 50 AC; plugs can be three-pronged angled, three-pronged round, two flat pins or two narrow round pins.

Water: Bottled mineral water, sold around 3 yuan, is widely available in all stores and street kiosks and sometimes provided free by the hotel. Potable water is available only at a few best hotels, so visitors should always ask to make sure. Water in thermos bottles in rooms is non-potable tap water.

Measurement: In Metric system.

Shopping: Shops are generally open from 9am to 7pm, or 8am to 8pm, daily. Night markets open until late at night. The traditional street markets, where you haggle for 'antiques' and collectibles, are found in every city, town and tourist site.

Transportation: Underground train or metro can only be found in big cities such as Beijing, Shanghai and Guangzhou. It is clean and easy to use. However, taxi is the easiest way of local transport mode that can be rent in most cities and can generally be hailed on the street. For fear of cheating, it is wise to agree to a price before you start. The smaller the taxi is, the cheaper the fare. Meters are used, and all drivers will give receipts, but few drivers speak English, so have addresses written in Chinese.

Visa: Visas are required by all foreigners entering Mainland China.

Weather: China has a continental and seasonal climate. With most parts located in the Temperate Zone
